New Festival, Installations & 100 Years of Filming at Old Royal Naval College, London

© Old Royal Naval College

In 2025, the Old Royal Naval College reaffirms its place as a cultural hub, offering a vibrant programme of events that blend history, culture and wellbeing. From awe-inspiring installations and heritage tours to dynamic festivals, family days out and activities that stimulate wellness, the UNESCO World Heritage Site continues its mission to provide enriching cultural experiences for all.

To kick off the year, visitors to the magnificent Painted Hall will have a final chance to bask in the beauty of Luke Jerram's Mars installation, before it closes on 20th January. To mark its departure and combat January's Blue Monday with the perfect night out for Dry January, the Old Royal Naval College will host Eyes on Mars: A Cultural and Scientific Exploration Talk, where Imperial College's Professor Gupta will delve into the Mars Rover mission, complemented by opportunities to observe Mars through telescopes on a dry January evening. For those seeking mindfulness, the Old Royal Naval College's ever-popular wellbeing programme offers a serene Mars Flow Yoga and Brunch session under the planetary installation.

This dedication to wellbeing continues throughout the year, with regular initiatives designed to uplift and inspire. Feel Good Fridays held on the last Friday of every month provide a dose of joy and relaxation. Meanwhile, in its commitment to opening access to wider audiences and offering free entry for children every day, First Sundays invite visitors to engage with the site's rich history for a £5 admissions entry.

Foodies will also be able to savour a sustainable dining experience on 25th January in the Painted Hall with celebrated chef Douglas McMaster, world-renowned for his pioneering zero-waste restaurant, Silo.

In addition to the site's cultural programme, the Old Royal Naval College, the UK's number 1 heritage film location, celebrates 100 years of filming in 2025. The 1925 silent film, Sons of the Sea by H. Bruce Woolfe about two boys in the Royal Navy was the first production on site.

Following the success of Mars, be the first to see Luke Jerram's newest and most ambitious artwork, Helios, at its London première. Co-commissioned by the Old Royal Naval College, this new seven-metre celestial artwork by the celebrated British installation artist will bring light and wonder to the majestic Painted Hall. Helios promises a sunny escape in an extraordinary setting, complemented by an exceptional programme of events celebrating wellbeing and culture, see release below.

From spring 2025, visitors will have the opportunity to book onto new film tours. Wigs, Weddings, Palaces and Powder will showcase the many period dramas filmed in Greenwich including Bridgerton and The Crown. Spies, Supersleuths and Superheroes, launching later in the year will look at thrilling action TV & movies shot on location. These new tours for cinema and TV fans will complement the Old Royal Naval College's extensive historic offering including their 600 Years of History Tour. Visitors can also try their hand at Victorian extra curricular in the charming Victorian Skittle Alley, a hidden gem beneath the Painted Hall offering traditional bowling.

The summer season brims with life at the Old Royal Naval College, welcoming back some of its most popular activities and presenting new and unmissable events. Back by popular demand, the best of London's furry friends will return for the beloved Dog Show on 25th May and nautical history takes centre stage during the Golden Age of Piracy weekend, with sword demonstrations, 18th century music, food, and a thrilling firepower display. The Three-Inch Fools and Summer Court Theatre will also offer captivating productions for the whole family.

London première of Helios by Luke Jerram

Opening 25th January, on display until 25th March 2025

Looking for some winter sun? Be the first to see Luke Jerram's newest and most ambitious design, Helios, at the London première at the Old Royal Naval College.

Co-commissioned by the Old Royal Naval College, this new seven-meter celestial artwork by the celebrated British installation artist will bring light and wonder to the majestic Painted Hall, one of the most impressive Baroque interiors in Europe. Helios promises a sunny escape – sans passport – in an extraordinary setting, complemented by an exceptional programme of events celebrating wellbeing and culture.

"The soundscape, lighting and sheer scale of Helios, make this the most dramatic and ambitious of my designs and I cannot wait to see it showcased in the Painted Hall. This installation is designed to be thought-provoking and inspire awe. It is also a unique opportunity to discover the grandeur of this iconic Hall and the many celestial, mythological and historical themes it explores in its painted ceiling." – Luke Jerram

Luke Jerram's Mars in the Painted Hall

Until 20th January 2025

© The Painted Hall, Old Royal Naval College

Make it your mission to see Luke Jerram's astonishing installation Mars at the Old Royal Naval College. Following the sell-out success of Jerram's works Gaia and The Museum of the Moon, Mars is the third of Jerram's out-of-this-world installations at the iconic Old Royal Naval College in Greenwich. Visitors will be awed by the spectacle of the Red Planet, recreated to scale and installed against the magnificent backdrop of the Painted Hall, often referred to as 'Britain's Sistine Chapel'. This unique pairing brings two breathtaking works of art together, merging science with history and myth.

Measuring seven metres in diameter, this spellbinding artwork features detailed NASA imagery of the Martian surface – about one million times smaller than the actual planet. The internally lit artwork transports us to this famed planet – the closest planet to Earth, which can often be seen in the night sky. Mars will feature a surround sound composition by BAFTA-winning composer Dan Jones, including clips from NASA missions to Mars, totally immersing visitors in the experience.

Alongside this awe-inspiring installation will be Mars-themed events including Late and dining events, family workshops and talks.

2025 at Royal Museums Greenwich

© Royal Observatory, Greenwich, London

2025 at Royal Museums Greenwich will see the opening of a new major exhibition Pirates in March, which traces the changing depictions of pirates through the ages. The Royal Observatory Greenwich will be celebrating its 350th anniversary with a year-long calendar of public events including activities, talks and special planetarium shows. The mesmerising Astronomy Photographer of the Year exhibition will return to the National Maritime Museum in September, displaying another year of breathtaking space images.

Pirates, National Maritime Museum, 29th March 2025

In March 2025 the major exhibition Pirates will open at the National Maritime Museum tracing the changing depictions of pirates through the ages and revealing the brutal history obscured by fiction. Whether as comical characters, like Captain Pugwash, villains like Captain Hook and Long John Silver or anti-heroes like Captain Jack Sparrow, pirates have captured the imagination for generations. Covering theatre, film and fashion the exhibition brings together material from early literature on piracy in the eighteenth-century, to 1980s haute couture.

While often portrayed as tricksters or scoundrels pirates are primarily depicted as swashbuckling adventurers associated with lush islands, flamboyant dress and buried treasure. Pirates will deconstruct these myths and illuminate the realities of pirate life, including the pirates Edward 'Blackbeard' Teach, William Kidd, Anne Bonny and Mary Read.

In Britain today, we think of pirates from the Caribbean seas, but historic piratical activity was far reaching, taking different forms throughout the world. The exhibition will cover piracy across the globe looking at the South China Sea, Indian Ocean and Barbary pirates who operated off the coast of North Africa.

ROG 350, Royal Observatory Greenwich, January 2025

In 2025, the Royal Observatory Greenwich celebrates its 350th anniversary. Founded by Charles II in 1675 to solve the problem of finding longitude at sea and save sailors' lives, the Royal Observatory Greenwich also became the home of Greenwich Mean Time and the Prime Meridian, making it one of the most important historic scientific sites in the world.

In this landmark year, there will be a series of events and activities that celebrate the rich history of the site and the work we do today. 350 years of pioneering research will be celebrated in talks, special planetarium shows, hand-on activities and stargazing events.

Daily tours will also focus on 350 years of the Royal Observatory as a home to the Astronomers Royal and explain how and why the Royal Observatory became the centre of time.

Astronomy Photographer of the Year Exhibition, Royal Observatory Greenwich and National Maritime Museum, September 2025

Astronomy Photographer of the Year returns to the National Maritime Museum in 2025 to celebrate the very best in astrophotography from around the world. The winning images are selected by an expert judging panel, including Royal Observatory Greenwich Astronomers. After the awards are announced in September 2025, winners will be displayed alongside a selection of the shortlist images in a special exhibition at the National Maritime Museum. Now in its seventeenth year, the 2024 competition received over 3,500 entries from enthusiastic amateurs and professional photographers, taken from 58 countries across the globe.

Heroic rascals or violent criminals? Discover the truth behind pirate life in a major new exhibition at the National Maritime Museum.

Pirates exhibition traces the changing depictions of pirates through the ages and reveals the brutal reality behind the fiction.

The exhibition explores the perception of piracy in popular culture – from comical characters like Captain Pugwash and Captain Hook to anti-heroes like Long John Silver and Captain Jack Sparrow – and examines why the idea of a pirate's life still fascinates us today.

While often portrayed as swashbuckling scoundrels, the real history of pirates is far more complex.

Pirates follows the global history of piracy from the South China Sea to the coast of North Africa and explores the issues of modern piracy facing seafarers today. The exhibition illuminates real-life figures, including Edward 'Blackbeard' Teach, William Kidd, Anne Bonny and Mary Read, and reflects on how perceptions of pirates, both past and present, are shifting.

The National Maritime Museum hosts the hugely popular annual Astronomy Photographer of the Year exhibition featuring the world's greatest space photography in their Photography Gallery.

The Astronomy Photographer of the Year competition is now in its sixteenth year and returns with an expert panel of judges from the worlds of art and astronomy. The winners of the competition's nine categories, two special prizes and the overall winner were announced on 12 September, and are now wonderfully displayed in an exhibition at the National Maritime Museum alongside a selection of exceptional shortlisted images. The competition is run by the Royal Observatory Greenwich, supported by Liberty Specialty Markets and in association with BBC Sky at Night Magazine.

Over 100 photographs are on show, displayed at their best on brilliant lightbox screens. The exhibition is free for all visitors to the Museum.

Glittering stars, shimmering galaxies, fiery suns and silver moons – wherever you are in the universe, don't miss Astronomy Photographer of the Year 16.

Celebrating the completion of Greenwich Park Revealed, The Royal Parks

Celebrating the completion of Greenwich Park Revealed, The Royal Parks

After four years, £12 million of investment, plus hard work from staff, volunteers and apprentices, The Royal Parks charity has completed its ambitious, flagship project, Greenwich Park Revealed.

The unique, formal landscape of Royal Greenwich Park, commissioned by Charles II in the 17th-century, and designed by French landscape architect André Le Nôtre (best known for designing the gardens of Versailles, outside Paris) has been restored and protected for future generations.

What's new?

The Grand Ascent unveiled

The Grand Ascent – giant, grass steps leading up Observatory Hill to the Royal Observatory – has been returned to its original splendour, while an improved viewing platform by the General Wolfe statue provides a new public piazza for cultural events.

The iconic Pavilion Café renewed

With a new open kitchen, a summer BBQ pop-up area and expansive al fresco dining, the iconic Pavilion Café remains a much-loved stop in Greenwich Park. A new menu with vegan alternatives, nature-inspired interior design, and the Pavilion Kiosk – serving visitors ice creams, and hot and cold drinks – only adds to the buzz. Originally built in 1906, this characterful octagonal building – easily recognised by its dovecote – is now restored to its full grandeur.

A liberatory tale: The Ignatius Sancho Café

The 18th century writer, composer and influential abolitionist, Ignatius Sancho once lived by Greenwich Park. Visitors can discover his life story, from a child enslaved in America to becoming the first Black person to vote in Britain (and the first to have his letters published) on a visit to this vibrant community space in what was once a private, residential lodge. The café sits within a new, landscaped community hub and kitchen garden: Vanbrugh Yard.

Greenwich Park Learning Centre goes fully-accessible

A brand-new learning hub in the heart of Greenwich Park, which provides outdoor learning opportunities for schools and community groups, has been built with accessibility, sustainability, and the surrounding landscape in mind. Visitors will find nature trails, a dipping pond, and a wildlife meadow. The nearby former Wildlife Centre building has also been transformed with accessible toilet facilities.

Wildlife habitats revived

Valuable acid grassland habitats have been rejuvenated to support birds and pollinators, such as ground-nesting bees and wasps in Greenwich Park. Plus, the famous Greenwich Park tree avenues, which provide foraging habitats and movement corridors for wildlife, have been renewed.

IFS Cloud Cable Car and London Cable Car Experience

© IFS Cloud Cable Car

Just five minutes' walk from The O2 is IFS Cloud Cable Car and the London Cable Car Experience, a must-do leisure attraction among Londoners and tourists alike. Providing a unique opportunity to experience the city's iconic skyline as you relax and take in aerial views of the capital. Some of the landmarks that can be seen include Canary Wharf, St Paul's Cathedral, the Shard, The O2, the Thames Barrier, Maritime Greenwich and the Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park.

The IFS Cloud Cable Car is the UK's first and only urban cable car. A panoramic experience to rival anything in London, it soars 90m above the waters of the Thames, connecting the Royal Docks to Greenwich Peninsula. Recipient of a Travellers' Choice for 2024, it's the perfect centrepiece to a day out around Greenwich Peninsula, one of the capital's most diverse and dynamic neighbourhoods. The London Cable Car Experience takes you behind the scenes of this engineering marvel, with children's activities, historical displays, and even a VR experience and teddy-bear making workshop.

Uber Boat by Thames Clippers: Eco-friendly Journeys & Hop-on Hop-off

© Uber Boat by Thames Clippers

Experience Greenwich like never before as you speed along the River Thames with Uber Boat by Thames Clippers. Departing from key piers every 10-20 minutes, and taking just 24 minutes from central London, the service offers a unique, quick, sustainable, and stylish way to explore the city. The business celebrates 25 years of operation this year.

You can now make more eco-friendly journeys through the capital. London's first ever hybrid passenger vessel, Earth Clipper, was launched in September 2023 and has been joined the following year by Celestial Clipper in March and Mars Clipper in August. The three hybrid vessels all carry passengers in central London on journeys with zero tailpipe emissions.

Uber Boat by Thames Clippers hybrid vessels reduce CO₂e by almost 90% compared with running solely on conventional marine diesel. So, not only do you benefit from travelling in style, but also feel good about doing so in an environment-friendly way. The vessel is also quieter, so you can sit back and soak up the sights and sounds from the river.

Make the most of London with Uber Boat by Thames Clippers' Hop-on Hop-off tickets for an ultimate day out. Embark and disembark at various piers between Putney and Barking Riverside to explore iconic landmarks and hidden gems conveniently located within walking distance. Discover the capital's attractions and plan your adventure using the interactive River Guide. The new Hop-on Hop-off tickets allow you to spend the day exploring London with the best value for money tickets.

This marks the beginning of the Club's expansion at the world's most popular live entertainment, leisure, and retail destination, with the full Club set to open in Spring 2025. These new courts offer London's padel players a chance to experience the sport at The O2 ahead of the full Club launch.

Driven by the overwhelming success and demand at Padel Social Club's debut Earls Court location, this expansion further solidifies the club's ambition to become the premier destination for padel in the UK. Originally planned for three courts, the vision for The O2 has now been expanded to include five state-of-the-art courts, split between indoor and outdoor to be unveiled in the spring.

From Spring, the Club at The O2 will feature a curated food and drink menu from top London chefs, paired with stunning riverside mezzanine views. This isn't just a place to play—it's designed to be an all-in-one lifestyle destination where members can play, socialise, work, and unwind.

Padel is a fast-paced racket sport that is often described as a mix between tennis and squash. The sport is played on an enclosed court, roughly one-third of the size of a tennis court. As it's typically played in pairs, it's a much more social sport. The walled court keeps everyone engaged, even those waiting to hit the ball, as well as allowing for more exciting gameplay.

The NinetyThird by Qatar Airways at The O2

Earlier in the year, The O2 launched its new multi-million-pound premium members club, alongside luxury airline naming rights partner Qatar Airways 'The NinetyThird by Qatar Airways' – a VIP members club which elevates the premium hospitality experience at the world's most popular live entertainment, leisure, and retail destination.

The new premium space has been launched with naming rights partner Qatar Airways, the national carrier of the State of Qatar, as part of a multi-year deal. Symbolising excellence in the worlds of aviation and live entertainment, this partnership enables Qatar Airways to merge their world-renowned hospitality with The O2's evolving premium offering.

With uninterrupted views from every seat, members of The NinetyThird by Qatar Airways will be able to enjoy over 200 world-class events a year at The O2, from the very best acts in music, comedy, sport and more. The new 300-capacity space will also be home to the Walkway – a first-of-its-kind retractable viewing platform, 70ft above the arena floor, accessible only to members within the space.

Set over 1,150 square meters, The NinetyThird by Qatar Airways is home to the arena's first high-end, 50-seater, on-site restaurant and several premium bar areas which are all exclusive to members. In addition to the main bar area, members can also visit The Golden Circle, a private, floating bar housed within the space, and Bar 1800 – an intimate cocktail bar serving a range of signature cocktails developed exclusively for the space and inspired by iconic moments in The O2's history.

The design of the new members club also draws inspiration from the venue's rich music heritage, with over 50 references to artists, performances, and iconic moments at The O2 arena.

InterContinental London – The O2 Launches New Indian Inspired Afternoon Tea

‘Chai By The Shore’ Afternoon Tea created by 2024’s winning team of Bake Off: The Professionals

InterContinental London – The O2 is thrilled to announce its Indian Inspired Afternoon Tea, ‘Chai By The Shore’. Designed by this year’s Bake Off: The Professionals winners, the afternoon tea combines traditional Western techniques with the rich, aromatic flavours of Indian cuisine, for an afternoon tea experience like no other. The exclusive afternoon tea is served at the hotel’s fine dining restaurant, Kinaara, which offers breath-taking views of the River Thames and Canary Wharf.

‘Chai By The Shore’ offers a unique afternoon tea fusing traditional teatime dishes with the sweet, spicy, hot aromatic flavours of Indian cuisine to create an expertly crafted menu. Reimagining the traditional afternoon tea, Kinaara’s chefs have combined their profound knowledge of spices with the culinary heritage of their backgrounds and cherished food memories, to create perfect pairings that seamlessly blend both cultures for an unforgettable culinary journey of sweet and savoury treats. The delectable offerings are prepared daily by Kinaara at InterContinental London – The O2. Executive Pastry Chefs Narayan Shrestha and Tanuj Sharma, the winners of Bake Off: The Professionals, have designed the menu using skills and techniques from some of the UK’s best chefs for an unforgettable culinary experience.

Perfectly merging the two cultures, tastes and flavours, the afternoon tea offers a combination of sweet and savoury bites.

The exclusive afternoon tea is available seven days a week, 12pm to 4pm.
